

Adrienne Weber is a London-based luxury womenswear brand, established in 2022 by Brazilian-born fashion designer Adrienne Weber. With a passion for delivering timeless, high-quality pieces, the brand sets out to represent refined elegance and impeccable craftsmanship.

At Adrienne Weber, we believe in creating a contemporary woman's wardrobe that embodies classic staples and precise tailoring. Every garment is thoughtfully designed to exude sophistication while maintaining an unmistakable edge. We envision the modern feminine as a blank slate, with fashion offering endless possibilities for self-expression and exploration of different identities.

Our commitment to sustainability sets us apart. We take a bold stance on minimising waste production and environmental harm. By embracing eco-conscious practices, such as utilising high-quality dead-stock fabrics, upcycling, and material recycling, we promote responsible consumption and production. We firmly believe that fashion can coexist harmoniously with the planet.

As advocates for preserving traditional artisanal techniques, we proudly source and produce each collection locally in England. This not only ensures the highest quality but also allows us to have direct control over the supply chain. By supporting local artisans, we contribute to the preservation of time-honoured craftsmanship while reducing our carbon footprint.

Adrienne Weber is the epitome of perpetual style for the modern woman. Our curated selection of versatile garments empowers women to embrace their uniqueness and personality with confidence. The Adrienne Weber team works hard to shape a brighter future for the fashion industry. Each piece is meticulously crafted to become an investment that transcends trends and stands the test of time.

Brazilian-born fashion designer Adrienne Weber founded her eponymous brand in 2022, with the intent to deliver timeless, high quality pieces.

After completing her studies between Central Saint Martins, and IADE, Adrienne graduated with a duo diploma in Fashion Design and Marketing Advertising. Her academic journey brought her to Paris in 2018, where she completed a Master's degree in Luxury Brand Management at INSEEC. Upon graduating, she has worked for notable labels such as Victoria Beckham, Jonathan Saunders and Mary Katrantzou, as well as fashion search engine Tagwalk.

Adrienne's multifaceted interests in music, photography, and fine arts have served as the driving force behind her designs. Celebrating the intersection between art and fashion, her collections are a vivid reflection of her artistic soul, effortlessly merging bold aesthetics with delicate craftsmanship.

Born in the vibrant city of São Paulo, Adrienne's artistic journey has taken her across the globe, from the romantic streets of Paris to the bustling metropolis of London. Drawing inspiration from the rich cultural tapestry and dynamic energy of these urban landscapes, she soaks in the artistic pulse of every city she's called home.

For the designer, the garments should not only adorn the human form but serve as a powerful medium of self-expression, celebrating individuality, confidence, and personal style.
