“URANIA”

“ she who draws our eyes shall lift our souls to heavenly heights ”

Designers Hila and Kristian Aadnevik would like to present their new collection inspired by Alexander Jamieson’s beautiful depiction of the heavens in a celestial atlas. Star maps are overlaid with imagery from Zodiac and ancient mythology.

“ Our muse for this collection is the divine nymph Urania, daughter of Zeus and Mnemosyne. Draped in incandescent heavenly gowns; she embodies the universal love and the Holy Spirit as she prognosticate the future in an infinite ocean of stars and galaxies. We wanted this collection to evoke sentiment to the mysteries and wonders of the cosmos with our heroine manifesting her father’s majesty and power and the beauty and grace of her mother.”

Sparkly tulle and luminous crystals are metaphors for the multiverse that draws our eyes to the starry night. Black velvet connects us to the dark matter and mirrors the vastness of astronomical worlds without end. Heavenly feathers epitomize the immortal goddess of ethereal existence, while French lace patterns compass the arrangements of zodiac on the earth’s orbit with the celestial sphere. Shiny sequins represent the solar system and planetary bodies held together by gravity and mutual attraction. The printed floaty dresses illustrate Jamieson’s otherworldly maps of the sublime.
