Press Release + Bio

DERRICK is the work of london-based menswear designer Luke Derrick.

Originally hailing from Oxford, Luke Derrick graduated from the Central Saint Martins MA in 2021, having trained at some of menswear's most famed traditionalist institutions the likes of Brioni, Alexander McQueen, Dunhill, Rapha, and Savile Row. Now operating from his studio in East London, DERRICK works in pursuit of new idiosyncratic British Elegance.

"For my first season with NEWGEN, what I thought was really important was to set a tone for the chapter ahead, of the world in which the label inhabits, and how it might respond to it.

In this regard, DERRICK presents NIGHTWALKING, a short film directed by London-based filmmaker Dylan Hayes, a piece that label's analysis into the distinctly London essence of being and moving through space. To be alone or to be with others. To be perpetually running out of time, or to have time to burn.

Within the scatterbrained existance of modern London living, there's a near-intangible chic hidden in the blur of riding through the restless state of urgency that underpins the metropolitan existance. This film was us trying to bottle that atmosphere in the shared distinct experience of moving through this city after hours. We very much hope you enjoy it."
